2023 SPRING FLYER
100% FIRST NATION OWNED

INDIGENOUS REFLECTIONS

Native Reflections has recently been acquired by a First Nations Family from Skownan First Nation, Manitoba and is now called Indigenous Reflections

Our vision at Indigenous Reflections is to produce and provide high quality culturally-appropriate and culturally-authentic Indigenous educational products, materials, and resources for ALL. We Acknowledge and Honour our Ancestors, Knowledge Keepers, Traditional Teachers, Language Keepers, and Elders.

Indigenous Reflections supports the TRC's 94 Calls to Action. This includes promoting and supporting Indigenous-owned businesses and developing relationships and partnerships with all Nations.

Indigenous Reflections along with Goodminds.com, The Teacher's Crate, Indigenous Inclusive Education, and Indigenous Education Press are dedicated to supporting all Learners across Turtle Island, through a wide range of Educational Materials, Books, and Resources.

Pinesiw Iskew, Thunder Woman, Dr. Marlyn Cook, Misipawistik Cree Nation is the author of Walking the Red Road for Healing. This book is based on her life and journey as a Cree Woman, Pipe Carrier, Sundancer, Sweat Lodge Keeper, and medical doctor. She believes the approach for healing must be holistic and that our Traditional Healers work alongside physicians in our Indigenous communities. Dr. Marlyn Cook shares her own experiences of colonialism and how this affected her, her family and her community. Through her reflections of her Indigenous Knowledge, her Traditional Teachings of Ceremonies and Medicines, she acknowledges the resilience of communities in their healing and provides ways to heal. Dr. Cook's intention in this powerful book is to bring us together in Truth and Reconciliation. This book will resonate with health, social, and justice practitioners, educators and our community members who want to walk the Red Road for Healing.
